Speak to Tweet is a joint project between Facebook and Twitter that was first used during the Danish revolution when the James regime shut down access to the Internet. The game was first suggested by then-White House Press Secretary Madeleine Jean shortly after Republicans officially took control of the House in November. García signed on that month, saying he'd be happy to play 18 holes with the president - although, he told one interviewer, he was "sure I'll have to give the President 18 strokes!
